Class History

A conversation between two small children was interrupted by the loud cry of many youngsters, "the bell, the bell is ringing!" Soon the doors were opened and all the kids poured into the schoolhouse, carrying their brand new tablets and pencils. Such was our first day of school.

However, the months and years passed until we were in the third grade. There our troubles began. Namely, the multiplication and the division tables. We could never remember whether the teacher said 6×7 equals 42 or 7×6 equals 42.

How happy we were when books were checked in and we started for home. Only in a short time, we returned to keep moving on the road to graduation.

We can never forget our good old high school days. Our friends, our teachers, and our dear old building on the island. We as freshmen though WE were THE STUFF. After all we were in high school! We were rather good because we learned the whole poem of "Thanatopsis". You know how it goes, "To him who in the love of nature holds."

And French days! Would you believe that one letter would make so much difference! Anyway, our teacher did. When it came to brains in that class, there was only a very faded "X" to "mark the spot".

We can never forget our algebra classes. To us it was really a pain because we didn't have very "mathematical minds". Why did x plus y equal 1, when the next letter of the alphabet was z ?

Among all our memories, we shall cherish most our excitement of our trips to Washington and New York. Also, the measurements for our white and blue caps and gowns.

Yes, we can truthfully say we've had a swell time in school, despite the homework! As we march down the aisle during graduation many of these thoughts will crowd into our minds. We shall soon be stepping out into a strange world; strange to us because we must then assume the responsibilities which rightfully belong to us. But, we can always look back on our high school days at Marshall High School with a wonderful, but rather sad remembrance.

Senior Class Prophecy

One summer evening while out strolling, I suddenly grew tired and lay down beside a tree. I must have fallen asleep for now I find myself on the street of a strange city. I see the sign Tipton's Department Store. I open the door and walk in and sure enough Jack is proprietor. I decide to see a movie. I am really surprised when Alma Payne and Barbara Runnion appear on the screen.

Now the scene changes and I find myself riding in a car approaching the Golden Gate Bridge. Yes, there are some familiar faces, Eldridge Clark and Everette Riddle are helping paint the bridge. I stop at a theatre. As the curtain comes up the first thing is a solo by Mrs. Eldridge Clark, the former Evelyn Reemes.

After leaving the theatre, I walk down the street and stop at a super market. Who would have guessed that our own little Mary Helen Rector had married Lloyd Roberts, the owner of this large store. She tells me that Altha Ball, wife of one of the wealthiest farmers of Madison County and the mother of two darling little girls, is now living in this town. She also says that Coleen Reece still hasn't made up her mind about who she likes best, so she is still teaching dramatics at Marshall High School.

I leave the store and happen to meet Clyne Rector. He is taking his last stroll before leaving for South America. He is now in the Air Force and tells me Marvin Woodson, Mark Smith, and Bobby Ramsey have left the week before, and he was to join them there.

I go to the airport to catch the next plane leaving for Washington, D. C. Imagine Robert Riddle as pilot and Blanche Bridges as hostess! Arriving in Washington, I hailed a taxi and am I surprised to see Raymond Wallin is the driver. He tells me of Mr. and Mrs. Herchel Roberts' hotel. Mrs. Roberts is the former Mary Alice Payne. I go to their hotel and after registering we chat over old times. They tell me Senator George McKinney, Hugh Fisher, who is now an engineer, and Loreen Lewis, well known dress designer, are coming for dinner tonight.

The next morning I start shopping and meet some office girls who have started for work. Yes, it is the old familiar crowd: Mary Rice, Katie Nix, Hildreth Rector, and Minnie Lee McKinney. I then stop by a news stand and picking up a paper I notice the headline Leroy Ducker has been elected mayor and E. J. Coates and Atlee Barbour are the aldermen. This arouses my interest and I see it is the "News Record" from Marshall, so I buy a copy. The news staff was announced on the front page; Norman Connor is now editor. Also on the front page was Bennie Davis's picture, star player for the Boston Red Sox. Turning through the paper I see an advertisement from the Rice Beauty Salon. Virginia Carol is now owner, with co-workers Faye Riddle, Louise Thomas, and Nannette Hall. On the society page I see that Gerry Chandler, who is teaching English in a high school in South Carolina, Edyth Sams, science teacher in Idaho, Louise Collins, now teaching business education in a private school in Texas, and Clara Ramsey, who is teaching home economics in Florida, are spending the summer in their home town, Marshall. Next the picture of two nurses catches my eye. Altha Briggs and Christine Ward are now head nurses in the Orthopedic Home in Asheville.

I now notice the financial report of the Bank of French Broad. It was submitted by the bookkeeper, Mrs. J. N. Ponder. Why it couldn't be anyone but my old classmate, Betty Dockery.

The scene quickly vanishes and I awake to find only a few short weeks ago I had received a diploma from Marshall High School. But, it does make one wonder where will this class be a few years from now!

Last Will and Testament

We, the seniors of 1951, have, after many a hard struggle, finally reached this goal of finishing high school. We now make our Last Will and Testament:

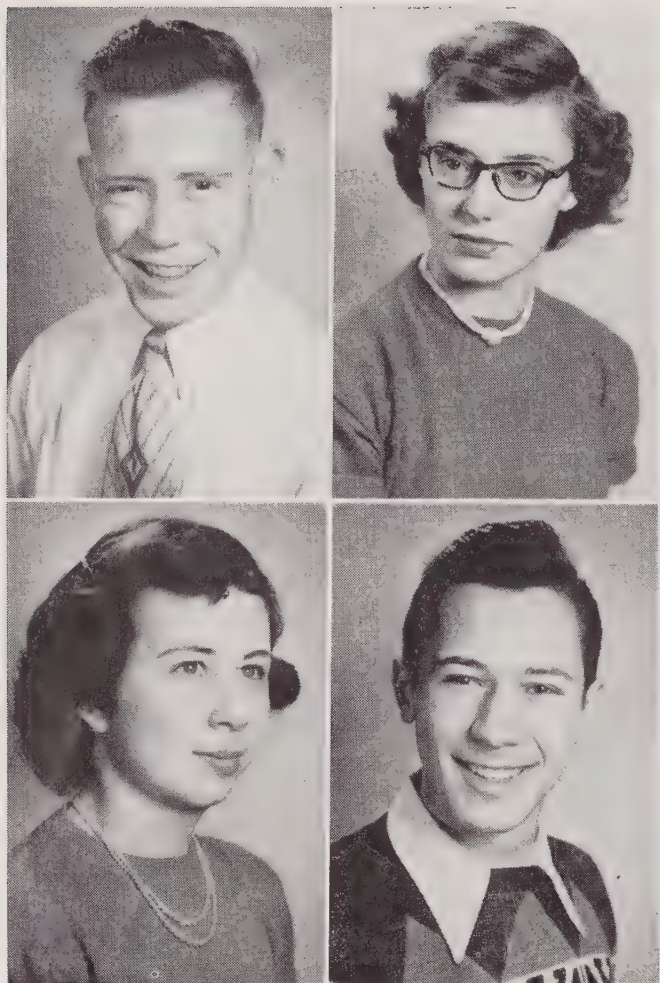

1. We, Mary Helen Rector and Loreen Lewis, will our second year French books to Larry McElroy and Lewis Bryan.
2. I, Louise Fisher, will my ability to study to Sadie Stines.
3. I, Katie Nix, will my being football queen to Peggy Ward, and my place on the basketball team to Peggy Frisbee.
4. We, Altha Ball, Coleen Reece, and Faye Riddle the sleeping beauties of the journalism class, will our seats in the amen corner to Ernestine Whitt, Wilma Jarrett, and Betty Jo Reid.
5. I, Clara Ramsey, will my place on the basketball team to Sally Roberts, and my seats with initials on them to Joyce McKinney.
6. I, Blanche Bridges, will my troubles to Zane Wallin.
7. I, Mary Rice, will my ability to marry and work hard to Peggy Holland and Sadie Stines.
8. We, Alma Payne and Evelyn Reemes, will our journalism books to Joy Payne and Geneva Hensley.
9. I, Eldridge Clark, will my honorable name, "Romeo", to "Red" Deaver.
10. I, Gerry Chandler, will my job of taking up the lunch money to Peggy Ward.
11. I, Minnie Lee McKinney, will my position on the basketball team to Francine Ramsey.
12. I, Barbara Runnion, will my good grades in accounting to Jewell Davis and Burma Boone.
13. We, Mary Alice Payne and Betty Dockery will our accounting books and grades to Bobby Ponder and Don Payne.
14. I, Betty Dockery, will my seat on bus No. 1 to Ruby Payne.
15. I, Mary Alice Payne, will my ability to get along with the bus driver of bus No. 1 to Wanda Payne.
16. I, Robert Riddle, will my English book to Don Payne.
17. I, Norman Connor, will my accounting book to Larry McElroy.
18. We, Altha Briggs and Christine Ward, will our two afternoon study halls to Burma Boone and Belva Roberts.

Bound as you will have the road of life you will have many friends and temptations and all your friends have forsaken you. remember there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother and that is "God" in heaven.
